All told it was a great day for the Veiled Prophets of Washington, for they also held the right of line in the big parade last night, and it was they who led nearly 4,000 visiting prophets in the march to Capitol Square, where a mamnoth wreath was placed at the base of the Washington monument as a tribute to the Father of His Country. The parade last night was in the na ture of a mardi gras affair, and Monarch Peter R. Pullman and his merry host were given an ovation along the line of march, with Prophet Moore bringing up their rear with the famous golden-hoof goat mascot. Some of the prophets returned to the sightseeing and other pleasures scheduled for today.

Yesterday the Washington prophets and the ladies of their party were entertained at Forest Hill Park and in the afternoon the local contingent took part in the drill. Sam Shreve's new Kallipolis Brass Band, under the direction of Julius Kamper, won plaudits in the outdoor festivities during the session of the Supreme Council and in the big parade last night, while the Kallipolis Glee Club, under Charlie Stevens, made the welkin ring on many occasions. The big ceremonial session, under the auspices of Samis Grotto, occupied the attention of the supreme officers and other visitors last evening, while the women visitors were entertained at a roof garden party on the Hotel Richmond. Later in the evening open house was held by Kallipolis and other visiting grottoes at the Jefferson, Richmond and Murphy's hotels.

This morning the supreme council will hold its final session in the Hotel Richmond auditorium, and the competitive band contest will be held on the steamer Pocahontas on a trip to Jamestown Island, the last big event of the supreme council session.
